

THREE STRIPED DAMSELFISH | Saltwater

(Dascyllus aruanus)

Many fancy damselfish lose their color and become unspectacular as they mature. The Three Striped Damselfish is the exception as it retains its juvenile coloring as it matures into adulthood. They can however lose their peaceful demeanour and become aggressive towards others. With a branching coral as a host adults are more comfortable and have a place to call home.

